

WORKING EQUITATION

WORKING EQUITATION

The main objective of the Work Equitation Trials is to combine the competitive spirit of an equestrian modality based on the classic riding of each country to the conservation of its traditions, namely in the use of the costume and harness being a prime example of an ethnographic and cultural showcase, maintaining the traditional costumes and saddlery characteristic of each country.

The growing interest that this modality has aroused, both at the level of competitors and the public, required APSL to create three distinct levels (Veterans, for those who have competed for at least one year, Under-16 and Debutant Horses for animals that participate in this type of event for the first time). In 2004, the number of classes was adjusted to five with the inclusion of the Under-20 and the Masters (higher level than in dressage requires Grand Prix exercises).

Comprised of different stages, a contest begins with a Dressage Test, followed by Maneability and Speed. There is also the Cow trial only held in places with conditions to do so.

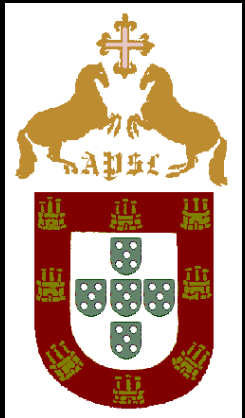

APSL is developing an important effort to promote the use of the Lusitano Horse in different disciplines.

With this goal, it organizes the National Working Equitation Championship, a discipline where our horse shows great aptitude.

The National Championship is disputed throughout the year with several Journeys held from North to South of the country.

The Championship is responsibility of the APSL under the umbrella of the of the Portuguese Equestrian Federation (FEP).

At the international level, the WAVE - World Association for Working Equitation is the entity that regulates the discipline that already has 22 countries.

As to be expected, the characteristics of Working Equitation lead to a huge success and the four initial countries in which trials of this type were currently used - Portugal, Spain, France and Italy – were promptly expand to another countries such as Germany, Belgium, England, Sweden, Switzerland, Austria, Australia, Holland, Czech Republic, San Marino, Brazil, Colombia, Slovenia, USA and Mexico with an important increasing participants. More recently, Hungary, Poland, South Africa and Denmark.

As a result of the practise of this discipline in different countries it become urgent to approach all the regulation's existing and in consequence it was created the WAVE – World Association for Working Equitation, in 2004.

WAVE as the main objectives to moderate, organize and developing this equestrian discipline.
